RICHARD LOEB SUDDENLY GOES INSANE

ACUTE FIBRILE PSYCOSIS FOLLOWING CASE OF MEASLES

Physicians Claim That the Case Is Not Unusual, As It Often Follows Attacks of Flu and Grip—Loeb Was One Of the Slayers of Richard Franks In Chicago.

Richard Loeb, slayer of Bobby Franks, will not be sent to an insane asylum regardless of his mental condition, Warden John L. Whiteman said Sunday when he received a report from physicians on the condition of the convict.

Loeb was transferred suddenly Thursday from a tractable, obedient prisoner into a raving madman by a mental breakdown following two weeks' illness with measles. He was in the prison hospital apparently recovered and was about to be discharged as cured and returned to work in the chair shop when he collapsed. He will be kept there for treatment.

The warden said that the new prison at Statesville was equipped with facilities for the care of insane patients. "There is even more pronounced signs of insanity today in Loeb's condition," the warden said. "His temperature has subsided but his mind remains unbalanced."

Most of the time Loeb mutters incoherently and uses profanity. His wrath is principally directed toward physicians and attendants. When his violence grows beyond ordinary restraint he is placed in what is known as "cold pack" a method of strapping insane patients to the bed in such a manner so they cannot move.

Warden Whiteman said that he did not believe Loeb was shamming. The attack of delirium was called a not unusual after-effect of measles.

Sometimes the patient regains his mind but in many cases the insanity is permanent, physicians claim.

Two guards are constantly at Loeb's bedside. When the insane attacks wear away and he is quiet the bonds are removed.

Loeb's brother, Allen, with whom he has always been on the most friendly terms, came to the prison Thursday to see his brother. "I don't want to see him," Richard told his attendants.

Dr. R. A. Martin, chief mental officer at the prison stated that he considered Loeb a psychopathic patient.

"It is not uncommon in psychopathic patients that they suffer mental derangements with the least little infection of fever," Dr. Martin said. "I have known psychopathic patients to become delirious and to remain so as a result of a high temperature or infection."

Dr. Martin said that he could not tell as yet whether Loeb would recover from the present infection and regain his sanity.

Nathan Leopold, partner of Loeb in the kidnapping and slaying of Bobby Franks, who is convalescing at the new prison hospital from an operation for appendicitis, expressed regret when he heard that Loeb was losing his mind.

DEWEY SOWERS IS DEMENTED IN HOSPITAL

Was Hurt in an Automobile
Smashup on Stoutsville
Road, May 17.

Dewey Sowers of this city, was removed from Mercy hospital Columbus, Saturday night to a sanatorium, after he had made an unsuccessful attempt to escape.

He became delirious Saturday and was subdued only after Dr. Joseph Price head of the hospital administered chloroform.

The unfortunate man was injured in an automobile wreck on the Stoutsville road Sunday afternoon, May 17. He was caught in the wreckage of a machine driven by Earl Leist. In the same accident Noah Fraizer was nearly scalped. Sowers was removed to the Home and Hospital and the following day was taken to Mercy hospital Columbus, in Albaugh's ambulance. At intervals he would recover consciousness and then lapse into a state of coma. His condition Sunday was bad and he became delirious. It took three men to hold him down. Very little hopes are held out for his recovery.

Mr. Sowers has a wife and child and several brothers and sisters in this city. He is a veteran of the World War having served overseas in the Rainbow division. He was a member of Company F, 166th regiment and was in the battles of Chateau Thierry and the Champagne.

AUTOMOBILE DESTROYED BY FIRE SUNDAY

New Sedan of Harry Whittington Goes up in Smoke—No Insurance.

When alarm 25 was sounded at the corner of Franklin and Mingo streets Sunday afternoon at 2:55 o'clock, the new Ford sedan of Harry Whittington which he had just placed in his garage was burning up.

Mr. Whittington had been out for a spin of only eight miles and had parked his car in the garage and had gone to the house. In less than thirty minutes the car, which had given him so much pleasure was a mass of old iron.

What caused the fire may never be known, but it is thought that a short circuit caused the trouble. Mr. Whittington had the pleasure of owning the car about forty hours. He had no insurance but intended to take out a policy on the car today. The garage in which the car was stored also went up in smoke, but fortunately Mr. Whittington carried $50 insurance on the building.

Mrs. Sherman Binkley discovered the garage on fire and telephoned to the fire department for assistance.

The Knights of Pythias, one of the city's leading fraternal lodges, held memorial services for their dead at Forest cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Sixty-five members headed by the Adelphi band formed in line at the Pythian castle at two o'clock and marched to the cemetery. Each member carried a basket of flowers and a triangle decorated in myrtle and these were placed on each of the 99 graves of the deceased members.

Following the decoration of the graves the members formed a triangle just west of the soldiers' monument where ritualistic ceremonies were held. Grand Past Chancellor, E. W. Char-chellor E. W. Ellis, of Dayton, made the address, which was interesting. The speaker of the tenets of the order; Faith, Charity and Benevolence, what the order really stands for and the place it holds in this country.

Bird on Radio Fools Robin in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh.—While listening to his radio recently, Thomas Hobson of No. 1635 Grandview avenue was surprised when a robin flew into his home through the kitchen door, which had been left open on account of the spring-like weather. Imitation bird songs were being heard over the radio at the time. Hobson believes the robin heard a robin's chirp from the loud-speaker and decided to investigate.

The feathered stranger made itself at home on the curtain rods and chairs, Hobson reported. The robin was disinclined to leave the house and members of the family permitted it to remain on a curtain rod in the dining room all night. Later the bird was given its freedom.

Baby Chicks Make Over Idaho Ranch

Entire Farming System Re-built by Poultry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A new line of work on the farm some times rebuilds the entire farming system somewhat like the House That Jack Built. This resulted from a trial which George Lucore, of Lincoln county, Idaho, made of commercial poultry work some three years ago, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. Lucore started poultry raising on his farm with the purchase of 1,000 baby chicks in the spring. Before winter he built a laying house for his pullets. This was a new type of house in his community, built from a plan which he and his county agent had worked out together. His method of feeding and managing his laying hens, obtained from the same source, was also new in that locality, and the neighbors were much interested in the outcome. The flock paid all expenses of the venture within 12 months, the report states. He repeated his undertaking the next year with 2,500 baby chicks, putting up additional houses, and has continued the work since.

To aid in taking care of the problem of supplying proper poultry feeds, Mr. Lucore has been adding to his herd of cows, as he finds skim milk his best source of protein. His cream output has accordingly increased. Because he wants to be sure of as large a flow of milk as possible he has turned his attention to growing dairy feeds and ample pasture. So in equipping his poultry plant, Mr. Lucore has also developed a dairy industry and a carefully planned crop rotation system for his farm.

London's Old Customs

Many Americans visiting London this season have found that several ancient customs still survive there. In Ely place, Hatton Garden, a watchman still cries the hour after the great iron gates are closed at 11 p. m. and will only admit late merry-makers or theatergoers after full identification; In Lincoln's Inn at nine o'clock the curfew is still sounded on the bell in the chapel tower. This bell was brought from Cadiz in 1596 by Queen Elizabeth's favorite, the earl of Essex. Every night at eleven the night watchman at St. James' palace makes a round of the grounds. A subaltern, a sergeant and three privates form the guard, led by a band boy carrying an ancient horn lantern, in which a candle burns. The lantern is a tradition of the guards, and so far nothing will induce them to go in for an efficient, modern electric flash lamp. "Won't you buy my sweet lavender?" is still heard, but changed by market conditions to six instead of sixteen bunches a penny.

"Gee Whiz," Said He

"Gee whiz," said a busy man as he stepped into a Wichita barber shop and found six girls in advance of him. While he was considering whether to wait or not, a girl in a chair paid her bill and departed and the five others who were only waiting for her went with her.—Wichita Eagle.

WHITE DIARRHEA.

Save Them

Ashville, Ohio, R. F. D. 1.

May 7, 1924.

Mr. Fickardt:—

I bought 400 chicks. Very soon the chicks began to die of WHITE DIARRHEA. My chicks kept on dying until I had lost 250 in two weeks.

At that time I had ten sick chicks and I really considered them as good as dead. I began to use your remedy with all my chicks, both well and sick. Eight of the sick chicks recovered and I have not lost any others since I began the use of Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops over a month ago.

I would have probably thought that the disease had run its course, if it had not been for the fact that those that were sick recovered; but seeing the sick ones get well has convinced me that your remedy cured them.

Here Is the Tool That Completes the Fordson Farming Cycle

FOR many years the tractor has performed satisfactorily with plow, harrow, drill and belt-driven tools. But, how to utilize Fordson power in cultivating corn has been a problem. That vacancy in the cycle which would otherwise be complete has now been filled by the Amsco Two-row Cultivator.

With this machine, the Fordson cultivates thoroughly from the first cultivation to the last. This new machine has accomplished remarkable results. It marks the end of monotonous cultivating behind slow plodding teams.

The construction of this machine is simplicity itself. No unnecessary parts. No unnecessary friction. The cultivator is light running and easy to handle.

This is the last word in Standard Fordson Equipment, and every farmer in this community should see it.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Aleppo's Many Charms.

Aleppo is a source of delight, for her bazaars are more primitive than those of any other city in the country and, for the same reason, full of charm. One can buy any product of the Near and the Farther East from these merchants, the products of the looms of Persia, the silk of China brought thousands of miles by caravan, and wonderful brass and inlay work.

MENTAL POWER OF SEXES ON EQUALITY

Old Idea of Women's Inferiority Is Disproved.

Ever since Adam exchanged his rib for a woman, men have been wondering whether he made a good bargain. James Weinland remarks, in Popular Science Monthly. Many points of the question have led to controversy, but one in particular there is, and always has been, surprisingly little divergence of opinion; the vast majority of men are quite certain that women have "no brains," this despite all the famous women of history.

Recently, though, psychology has got right down to cases and measured both men and women scientifically with the same yardstick, and reported that men and women are just about equal in intelligence.

Very elaborate intelligence tests were recently given at Colorado college to 115 men and 111 women. The average score for both men and women was exactly the same—142 points. A combined study of the student bodies of several western universities shows that the percentage of students getting "A" and "B" grades in their studies through a long period was for men 75.4, and for women 75.2. In a joint psychological test of men students of Harvard university and women students of Radcliffe college a few months ago, a man and a girl tied for first place, while for the men the average score was 50.5 and for the women 55.

There rarely appears any appreciable difference between male and female students, taking them all the way from kindergarten through college. Neither will you find any considerable difference in the quality of the output of men and women performing tasks that lie within the capabilities of each.

It is only recently that women discovered certain positions as possible careers. The United States bureau of census reports, for example, that the number of women chemists and metallurgists has more than trebled in ten years. In the same time the number of women college presidents and professors has increased from less than three thousand to more than ten thousand. With about eighteen hundred women lawyers and judges, we now have three times as many as there were a decade ago. We find more than four thousand women bank officials, almost as many women officials in manufacturing and similar enterprises; women doctors, dentists, and clergymen in legion. There are even more than one thousand women who earn their living as chauffeurs.

Do not these figures indicate that the past found women "ineffective" in these fields merely because their training and opportunity had not directed their interest to them?

Small Things Really Test of Friendship

One of the tragedies of life is that so many friendships which began well end badly.

Of all human relationships it is doubtful if there is any sweeter, stronger, more disinterested than a perfect friendship between two men, two women, or between a man and a woman. Yet it is within the experience of almost all of us that two persons who have loved each other as friends for years suddenly separate.

No one knows why. "No, I haven't seen her lately," is the reply uttered with assumed nonchalance if one ventures to make an inquiry about the friend who has suddenly "dropped out."

Or, "Oh yes, I meet him at the club sometimes" is the airy answer of the man who appeared to be devoted to the friend with whom he is now rarely associated.

There are many things which spoil friendship. Perhaps the most common is the possessive sense of jealousy which misinterprets the most innocent action. Without trust in the sincerity of a friend there is no sure foundation for a permanent relationship. Friendship without trust swiftly perishes.

Impatience has destroyed many once happy friendships. No friendship can be in the first few months of its existence the joyous, exactly attuned communion which comes when storm, as well as peace, has tested it, when time has tried it. Friendship, whether it is the friendship of marriage, of the spiritual friendship of man and woman, must have room for growth.

Most of us have enough courage, sufficient generosity, and adequate imagination for those great needs in others which come infrequently, but it requires a great character to create a great friendship in the longer periods of unheroic events. To be able to offer some one we love the gift of friendship we must know how to be tender without being sentimental, be ready to understand the desire for solitude in others, to give what is wanted of us—and no more.

And that is not easy. "She wanted to do so much for me; I was very fond of her, but her kindness embarrassed me," I once heard a woman say of a friend. Real friendship may often mean refraining from giving.—Ex change.

Valueless Unless Tested.

That fortitude which has encountered no dangers, that prudence which has surmounted no difficulties, that integrity which has been attacked by no temptation, can at best be considered but as gold not yet brought to the test, of which therefore the true value cannot be assigned.—Johnson.

Laces and Linens Favored in Paris

Popular Fabrics Are Being Used for Frocks, Tunics, Blouses and Vests.

Decidedly significant is the return of lace for whole frocks, for flounces, for cutout appliques and for collars and cuffs, advises a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune. The season is one of daintiness and femininity, and for that reason lace predominates. Satin and crepe de chine frocks have skirt tunics covered with an applique of white or ecru lace, or motifs of lace are placed upon revers. Collars and cuffs of lace and embroidery are used frequently by such houses as Beer, Doeillet, Martial et Armand, in their recent models. The lace frock, either in colors or ecru, is shown for summer afternoons. Molyneux has an attractive model of ecru and black lace worn over a slip of natural kasha and Cyber favors lace panels and applique as a trimming for many of his crepe and satin afternoon gowns.

Linens dyed in all the pastel colors, or left white, are used for tunics, blouses and vests on many spring costumes. Linen coats are featured by Lucien Lelong and smart Parisiennes are wearing gilets, collars and cuffs of linen and pique. Worth favors linen for tunics on many of his spring ensembles.

Spring crepes imprimés are small in pattern and there is very little of the floral design of last season in evidence. Checked silks and woolsens have largely replaced plaids.

Delicate pastel colors are predominant for springtime. There are only a few collections—Drecol, Doeillet, Doucet and Chanel—where black is used to any extent. All the pale and soft tones of purple, violet, mauve and amaranthe are smart, and a pale bois de rose is prominent at every smart gathering. Blue, ranging from the bright madonna blue to the palest baby blue is strongly featured. All the shades of capucines (nasturtium) are used by the spring fashionables on the Continent. Some of the important houses, Worth, Beer and Renee, are using delicate grays. Greens, dull chartreuse, sage and terre verte, are seen in endless combinations. Jeanne Lanvin, Doeillet and Vionnet are featuring pure scarlet. Of course, there is a great deal of sand and beige, the latter in rose and yellow tones.

Lanvin is triumphing her plain kasha coats with bands which are made of mosaics of tweed in varying patterns. Probably the smartest ensembles of all for springtime are those with a coat of kasha or other soft wool material, and a dress of crepe de chine in a lighter tone.

Note of Quaintness in This Black Satin Frock

Youthfulness and grace are in evidence in this winsome little black satin frock. The graduated flounces on the skirt and the white flat net collar give it daintiness appreciated by most women.

Wrist Watches, Lockets Are Used in Many Forms

Ever since new and unheard-of places in which to hide watches were discovered, many jewelry novelties of this sort have been brought out. Most of these are very expensive, of course, because only the finest workmanship succeeds in these infinitesimal tricks. The wrist watch has been exploited in every imaginable form, size and style, from the matter-of-fact sports model of silver on a leather strap, to a wee Swiss movement on a ribbon bracelet.

Latterly the locket, worn on a slender chain, cord or narrow ribbon, was the last word in a small edition of time-piece. But now a swagger shop, belonging both to Paris and Manhattan, has evolved a merry little thing in a square shaped, thin locket—a still thinner watch of the highest grade. The locket opens as usual, with a spring, and the watch swings out, to be set up, slantwise in the gold frame work, to answer as a clock on one's desk or dressing table when it is not engaged in being a pendant.

The young couple have returned to this city and will make their home on the Bumgarner farm west of this city. The bride was a graduate of this year's class of the Circleville high school. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Bumgarner.

Not the Usual Ending.

I was ten when one of the "big" boys attending my father's school called at our home. I was very favorably impressed—was desperately in love with him. He was quite friendly and nice to me, while I was so self-conscious and awkward that I fell off my chair. It might have ended there, but I saw him soon afterward at a spelling bee and he invited me to be his partner in the games. Now we are both happily married to someone else.—New York Sun.

Words That Work Hard

There are words it is almost impossible to avoid using, however carefully we may try to do so.

It is said that a quarter of the task of expressing oneself in the English language is borne by nine words—and, be, have, it, of, the, to, will, and you. It is asserted that these nine, with 34 other words, form half the words the average talker uses in ordinary conversation.

The additional 34 are as follows: about, all, as, at, but, can, come, day, dear, for, get, go, hear, if, in, me, much, not, on, say, she, so, that, these, this, though, time, we, with, write, your, her and one.

It would be an interesting and instructive occupation for readers to underline on any one page of this paper the words included in this list of 43 and see how near the total number comes to being half of the whole.

Left ears are becoming more efficient than those on the right side of the head, according to a professor of the Yale Medical school. He attributes this to the fact that Americans use the left ear almost exclusively for hearing over telephone receivers. Although both ears are of equal size, constant use of the left ear in telephoning has made it more efficient

AMUSEMENTS

The journey of Columbus across the Atlantic in 1492 required no more courage than the trip made by the pioneers of the south in their attempt to establish a definite trail between Texas and the railroads in Kansas.

The first caravan traveling from the Gulf of Mexico to northern United States faced fearful odds—Indians, Carpet-baggers, floods, fire, wild animals and more obstacles described in Emerson Hough's historical novel, "North of 36," which Irvin Willat produced in picture form for Paramount.

Like Columbus, the first caravan had no guide save the compass and stars. Nobody had ever been over the trail before. Those who had attempted never returned to tell the tale. When happened, nobody ever knew.

In "North of 36" the first journey from the south to the north is told upon the scene for scene as it actually occurred sixty-one years ago. Nothing has been left out, nothing added. The true story of the hardships and suffering of the brave band was so thrilling that it required no change to achieve the supreme in drama.

Prominent in the cast of "North of 36" are Jack Holt, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson, the "Covered Wagon" girl, and Noah Deery. The picture opens a three days' run at the Met theater today.

Brilliant Man of Letters

William T. Stead's knowledge of the Bible would have put some bishops to shame, a friend of the great English writer declared. He would finish from memory almost any verse from the Scripture, the first half of which was given to him and the bewildering names of obscure Scriptural characters had literally no terrors for him. His conversation was fascinating. He knew everything and he threw an explosive energy into the talk that was both captivating and overwhelming. Stead's genius was overshadowed by his fanatisms. He was capable of almost superhuman feats of writing.

The Blow That Came to Lin Loo

By ANTHONY REIMERT

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

WE ALL took a natural interest in Lin Loo, chop suey restaurant proprietor. In the first place, he was a member of the Presbyterian church, and in the second he was the only Chinaman in town.

This interest was naturally enhanced when there appeared on the scene suddenly a pretty little Chinese wife.

And it rose to boiling point when he brought to the Rev. Mr. Sturgis Jones a tiny baby to be christened.

It howled as lustily as any Caucasian infant when the water was poured on it. That assured Lin Loo's standing in the community. Thenceforward all Rockington took a pride in its two Christian, civilized Mongolian adults and its one Mongol United States citizen. The business of the chop suey restaurant went up by leaps and bounds. Someone, learning that Lin Loo's deposit at the bank was a heavy one, even proposed nominating him for village trustee. However, as Lin Loo was not a citizen, and couldn't become one, the proposal came to nothing.

Spring brought its annual crop of infantile disorders. Measles and mumps—nothing to white children, but death to Mongolians. The little baby sickened and died.

"It might have been malignant smallpox," said Doctor Harrington. "No one could have saved it."

Lin Loo bore up under the blow. "He's taking it like a white man and a Christian," said the Rev. Sturgis Jones admiringly.

"They'll get over it when the next one comes," said Mrs. Sturgis Jones, with one of those feminine glances that are so significant.

Three months later pretty little Mrs. Lin Loo was dead. She was buried with the new-born baby beside her. Lin Loo was left alone.

Not a change appeared upon his stolid, smiling Mongol face. "But he feels it," said Rev. Sturgis Jones. "Don't believe for a moment that he hasn't any feeling. These Chinese have a wonderful power of self-control."

Opinion was divided on that point. But outwardly this second blow had left Lin Loo unscathed. He still presided over the chop suey restaurant, his voice was still raised in the hymns on Sundays. Whatever the inward change, he had succeeded in concealing his feelings from the eyes of the world.

"He'll get another wife," suggested Mrs. Sturgis Jones.

But no other Chinese bride appeared, and Rockington gradually forgot the tragedy that had wiped out the family of its one Chinese inhabitant. However, the chop suey restaurant continued to prosper.

Then an astonishing thing occurred. Loo was not in his seat at church one Sunday. And the restaurant was closed.

The Rev. Sturgis Jones, going to Loo's house to inquire whether he was ill, was forced to gain entrance through the scullery window. He smelled a peculiar smell, and discovered Lin Loo lying on a couch, under the influence of opium!

Then and there he preached him a sermon on the iniquity of his backsliding, but Loo was too far gone to understand.

The restaurant continued closed. For a week all the village was agog to know what had happened to Lin Loo.

At the end of the week it was announced that the chop suey restaurant was to be taken over by a compatriot. Loo's house had been sold at a knock-down price to Aarons the local clothier.

And Loo was going back to China. Finally the Rev. Sturgis Jones, making another effort to probe to the bottom of the mystery, entered the house—by the same scullery window—and discovered Loo, dressed in rags, prostrate before what looked to him, he said, suspiciously like a miniature heathen temple.

Compassion stirred him to put a friendly hand on Lin Loo's shoulder. "Lin Loo," he said, "some dreadful trouble has come to you. You must have faith. Won't you tell me what it is?"

"Lin Loo looked at him with his eyes full of tears.

"She have one stroke. She paralyzed," he whimpered. "Letter from China."

"Who, who, Loo?" asked the Rev. Sturgis Jones.

"My cousin's grandmother!"

All at Sea

A girl at a public library inquired if "The Red Boat" was in.

"I don't think we have the book," she was told.

"Oh, excuse me," said the girl. "I made a mistake. The title is 'The Scarlet Launch.'"

After a search the library assistant reported that no book with that title was listed in the card catalogue.

"But I am sure you have the book," the girl insisted. Suddenly she opened her handbag and produced a slip of paper on which something was written. Then she blushed. "Oh, I beg your pardon," she said. "It's 'The Ruby Yacht,' by a man named Omar, I want."—Boston Transcript.

JAMES B. LEWIS, LONG BILL CLERK

Is Dead—Veteran Employee of Ohio House Succumbs To Recurrent Attacks of Influenza.

Akron, June 5.—James B. Lewis, 75, for 45 years bill clerk of the Ohio house of representatives, died here today. His wife is seriously ill at Grant Hospital, Columbus, the result of an operation, and Lewis came here ten days ago to the home of Mrs. J. R. Fontaine, niece of Mrs. Lewis.

Mr. Lewis, probably one of the best-known attaches of the general assembly, died from the effects of recurrent attacks of the flu, of which he had been a victim for the last several years. Despite his illness, he attended his duties at Columbus during the last assembly.

Mr. Lewis was born and lived at Bairview Village, a suburb of Cleveland all his life. His service at Columbus was continuous except for one Democratic term when no rebulican was retained. He handled every bill introduced in the house.

He never took a prominent part in campaigns but was active politically.

DEATH OF INFANT

The infant daughter of Edward and Lucy Estell Heffner died six hours after birth at their home in Jackson township Sunday, June 7. The funeral service and interment were in Jackson township Monday.

True to His Clan

A Glasgow business man, named Campbell, tells of the strange survival of a clan feud which was brought unpleasantly to his notice during a Highland tour. He was driving in the Glencoe district when he happened, unwisely, to remark to the Jehu, "Perhaps it would be dangerous for me to say in this district that my name is Campbell." The driver's response to the pleasantry was impressive, for he stopped the machine at once and told his fare that he would drive him no farther. "I am a McDonald," he said, with dignity, "and I will never drive a Campbell, if I can help it." And he left Campbell in the glen.—London Morning Post.

Socrates on Envy.

"An envious man waxeth lean with the fatness of his neighbor," said old Socrates. "Envy is the daughter of pride, the author of murder and revenge, the beginner of secret sedition, and the perpetual tormentor of virtue. Envy is the filthy slime of the soul; a venom, a poison, or quicksilver which consumeth the flesh and drieth up the marrow of the bones."

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

(United Press)

Cincinnati, O., June 8.—When children released the brakes on an automobile parked on a hill here it ran away killing Miss Cora Smith, 58.

Cleveland, O., June 8.—Two gunmen slugged the night watchman at the Bond Clothing company today, knocked the combination from the safe and escaped with $10,000.

Lancaster, O.—William Belhort, Lancaster, was elected state commander of the Ohio Rainbow Division Veterans here in annual convention Friday. Marion will be the 1926 convention city.

Mt. Vernon, O., June 8.—Between six and eight thousand visitors were here today for the opening of the state G. A. R. convention. Preliminary to the encampment the Mt. Vernon festival association sang two oratorios last night in the new county Memorial hall.

Louis F. Aramberg national commander of the G. A. R. will arrive tomorrow. United States Senator Frank B. Willis will speak Wednesday night.

Pomeroy, O.—Fred Burkett 40 and his ten year old son, Albert were drowned in a pond near here yesterday. Mrs. Burkett stood on the bank and watched helplessly as her husband went down for the third time attempting to save their little boy.

Cleveland, O., —Two persons were drowned seeking relief from the heat in the waters of Lake Erie Sunday.

Cronies 30 Years, They Die Same Day

Cadillac, Mich.—They lived together, died together and they are to be buried together. Such epitomizes the lives of two old cronies, mill employees for the same company for 30 years, who are to be buried at one service here, following their deaths on the same day.

Frank Victor, fifty-seven years old, died on a Monday morning, and his roommate, Adolph Ericson, sixty-three years old, died later the same day. Each succumbed to pneumonia, following an attack of influenza.

They had lived together in the same rooming house for more than thirty years. Neither had any relatives in this part of the country.

THERE ARE NO HEATING FOODS

One of the foolish fallacies prevalent among even the widely-read and well-informed is that there are certain foods which "heat the blood," and others which "cool the blood."

Alfred W. McCann, in his "Science of Eating" specifically declares there are no foods capable of increasing the heat of the body above the constant normal of 98.4, or decreasing it below that same figure. He says:

"Foods are neither heating nor cooling. No food has the power of raising the temperature of the body to a point higher than the normal constant, 98.4 degrees Fahrenheit. No foods are cooling in the sense that they can reduce the temperature of the body to a point lower than this same normal constant."

This fallacy is close kin to that indefinite thing known as "light" food, or "heavy" food. They all show how utterly ignorant humanity is of why it eats.

It is utterly astounding how many people implicitly believe that in the summer time they must avoid certain foods because they are "heating" and must use others because they are "cooling" to the blood. Every reader of these lines should make it his duty to inform his friends and neighbors that this is a fallacy utterly without foundation in fact or truth.

Cutty Stools.

The creiple or cutty stool was a stool once used in the Scottish church for punishment of offenders against chastity. The sinner was required to sit in full view of the congregation, and at the close of service, rise for reprimand by the minister.

Pup Had Been Called For.

Little Richard came home from school with a stray dog that was very playful. They had a great time. At supper time Richard's mother asked him what became of the dog. He replied, "O, his parents came after him."

BEWARE OF BANKERS SHARES OF FORD MOTOR CO. CANADA STOCK

Ford owners and others are again being flooded with circulars for the sale of so called "Bankers Shares" of stock of the Ford Motor Co. on Canada and we want to warn anyone against the purchase of these without carefully investigating same. The literature is misleading and if you purchased some of these you would be paying a much larger price than the stock could be purchased for and the so called bankers shares do not allow the purchaser the privileges that the owner of the bona-fide shares would have.

We will be glad to give anyone what information we can in this connection or consult your banker. The Ford Motor Co., has issued a warning against the purchase of such shares of stock.

Doctor Has Busy Voyage Prescribing by Radio

Plymouth, England.—Dr. Erskine Gray of the Cunard liner Antonia was kept busy on the last voyage of the Antonia from New York to Plymouth with calls for medical assistance from other vessels.

Four times daily for five days he prescribed by radio for a sailor who had been badly injured on the steamer Rosworth, hundreds of miles away. Then the American steamer Antinous reported its captain seriously ill. Doctor Gray diagnosed the case as one of pneumonia, and for three days prescribed treatment, which proved successful. Several other cases of minor nature, from ships many leagues distant from the Antonia, also were treated by radio.

German Housing Exhibit

The Dresden exhibition for the year 1925 will be devoted to housing problems, settlements and city buildings. Especial importance is to be given to a scientific and technical section, which will show modern building materials and parts, special construction methods, modern building tools and auxiliary machinery used in construction. Next in importance will be exhibits showing domestic necessities and modern conveniences, such as household utensils, furniture and heating and ventilating plants. Models of dwellings and groups of houses are to be constructed in the open.—United States Commerce Reports.

Christmas in Hotel

"I obeyed every adjuration of the advertisers this year," moaned a Marlborough avenue father, "and did my Christmas trading early. I bought all the presents for my two children and my wife, found a nice Christmas tree, and made all arrangements for a happy holiday. And just as I concluded that everything was set for the finest sort of day, one of the children came down with scarlet fever. The house is quarantined and I had to spend my Yuletide in a downtown hotel. I call this tough."—Detroit News.

Wild Animals Costly
Few wild animals can now be bought in the open market, the industry being so much interfered with owing to post-war conditions. It is becoming increasingly difficult for circuses and zoological gardens to replace their stock, and prices have soared proportionately. The center of the world market is Hamburg, Germany, where a giraffe brings $5,000; a hippopotamus, $2,500 to $5,000 and a fine lion, $1,250.

Comes From the Romans
The expression, "He isn't worth his salt," found its origin in the fact that Roman soldiers were paid in salt rather than with money.

TO HARNESS GALE FOR FARM WORK

British Expect to Generate
Cheap Electricity.

London.—Having failed to achieve any world-beating records in aerially racing the wind, John Bull is trying to harness the "blawsted" gale.

An "airplane windmill," invented by a Berlin scientist, Major Blau, is the backbone of the effort. A specimen of this invention and four other types have been erected on the hilly ground near Harpenden, in Hertfordshire, where the Oxford University Institute of Agricultural Engineering has established a testing ground.

Englishmen have been so encouraged by the results of the experiments to date that they already have visions of huge economies and a brighter countryside, through the cheap generation of electricity.

It is believed that a windmill will eventually be capable of operating all of the plant of a large farm or of supplying all the needs of the average village—lighting the streets and houses, and, perhaps, running its "movie" house. After the installation, it is thought, the cost of operation will be almost nil. All the attention required will be the visit of a man with an oil can once a month.

The steel sails of the Blau aerodynamic are mounted on a stout post some thirty feet high. They give the appearance of a greatly magnified airplane propeller. The sails are so constructed that suction is brought into play to get every possible ounce of turning power from the wind. As the sails revolve they set cogs in motion, which operate a dynamo contained in a balloon-like attachment behind the propeller. The current so generated is carried by wires to the power station.

The testing station officials have found a machine of the older type generates three-quarters of a kilowatt, with the wind blowing at five miles an hour. Under similar conditions, they say, the Blau machine is apparently capable of registering at least five kilowatts, or roughly the equivalent of a seven horse-power motor.

The Better the Day

Maudie—Are you in favor of Sunday sports?
Pansie—If they're willing to spend a little jack on this baby, I'm for 'em.

"BLUSHING VENUS" FOUND IN AFRICA

New Discovery Rivals Her
Sister of Milo.

Rome.—A new Venus which may attract the homage of the world away from the better known Venus de Milo, now in the Louvre at Paris, has been uncovered beneath the shifting sand dunes of a north African desert.

It is "the Blushing Venus," a charming, timid creature in stone that has lain beneath the sands of Tripoli since Septis Magna, the magnificent city of the Emperor Septimius Severus, was overwhelmed centuries ago by the rolling dunes and disappeared from sight.

So alluring are the coy charms of "the Blushing Venus" that the Italian government plans to erect a hotel at the village of Homs, three miles distant from the ancient city, to cater for American and other tourists who may be lured to see a graven beauty fit to sit beside the Capitoline Venus or the Venus de Milo.

Statue Is Intact.
The blushing one equals, if it does not surpass, the Melos Venus, which is the standard of perfect feminine proportion. Unlike the famous sister, "the Blushing Venus" is intact, and its finders declare it to be one of the finest examples of Grecian art.

The lines are full of grace and the figure amplifies the beauty of the human form with fascinating charm. The face somewhat resembles the Capitoline Venus and shows a Roman beauty's facial contour with delicate finesse.

"The Blushing Venus" head is turned slightly and gently bowed, portraying the modesty the artist intended to depict in his bashful subject. Two strands of hair hang gracefully over each shoulder. One arm is relaxed across the breast and the other hangs naturally. There is a shrinking blush in the shoulders, accentuating the spirit of modesty. The arms and legs are sculptured with delicate attention to anatomy, with the right leg slightly genuflected and relaxed. The left leg is rigid and supports the weight of the body.

Find Other Art Works.
Beside the African Venus a winged Victory was discovered, decapitated by the rough usage of time, but one of the great examples of Greek art, nevertheless. The statue is a life-size reproduction of Victory, a female figure, with folds of drapery hanging about it. Hundreds of other statues have been uncovered beneath the sand dunes that cover the site of the former great city.

Prehistoric S. Carolina Mounds to Be Explored

Anderson, S. C.—Archaeologists from several colleges in this state are to join an expedition being organized here for the purpose of exploring the great mounds on the Tugaloo and Seneca rivers, near here, which are said to have been built by a race that antedated the red men.

Some of the mounds, especially those along the Tugaloo river, are so large that they cover approximately three acres and are about 100 feet high.

Following an examination of several of the mounds, Andrew Todd of this city expressed the opinion their interiors are hollow and contain relics of an ancient race that only await the explorer's pick to bring them to light.

A large mound near Calhoun falls was demolished during the floods of 1908, revealing a number of pieces of pottery and other evidences of a past civilization.

Dick Turpin Capes Cloak English Women

London.—The highwayman's cape worn by robbers in the time of King George I is coming into fashion this spring for women. Capes generally are in favor, but the style made famous by Dick Turpin, 200 years ago, and other notables in the robbing game have been particularly popular, most of them dipping far past the waistline, many of them scalloped. Among the first to follow this vogue was Miss Ava Bodley, well known in society, who was married recently to Robert Wigram, secretary of the British embassy in Paris. Mrs. Wigram's going-away costume included a cape over a long coat, which matched a pale mignonette green dress and green felt hat.

$500,000 in Gold Stolen From California Mines

Sacramento, Cal.—More than $500,000 in gold was stolen from the deep mines of California during the last year, Gov. Friend W. Richardson announced in signing a "high grading" bill similar to an act in effect in Colorado. The measure is designed to throw greater safeguards around ore and provides a direct law under which mine thieves may be prosecuted.

Leaves His Wife $5; Man Friend $200,000

Los Angeles, Cal.—Five dollars to his wife, Frieda, and more than $200,000 to James A. Watt, described simply as "a friend," are among the bequests noted in the will, filed for probate recently, of Henry G. Voceck, eccentric drug store proprietor. One-third of Voceck's $350,000 estate goes to his son.
Voceck was found beaten to death in his shop.

No Change in Woman

Dr. George A. Reisner, professor of Egyptology at Harvard and director of the joint expedition sent by Harvard and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts to Egypt, says women have changed very little in four thousand years; that rouge and lipstick were profusely used by the Egyptians as far back as 2000 B. C., and beads, earrings, bobbed hair and tight skirts were all the craze then.

Courteous Salesgirl Is Remembered in Will

London.—Politeness among shopgirls received a stimulus recently when it was announced Susan Plomer of Hornsey, who died some weeks ago, had willed an annuity of $450 to Kate Wenham, an employee of an Oxford street department store, "in recognition of many courtesies received at her hands." Miss Wenham had waited upon Miss Plomer in the store during the last ten years, but had no idea that her customer was wealthy.

Sister's Comment.

Mother was entertaining a guest who hadn't called for several months when in walked Myrtle and Bobby. "Well," exclaimed the lady, "there's little Myrtle looking the same as ever, but, I declare, I'd hardly recognize Bobby!" "Course not!" flashed Myrtle, "htm has just had his face washed."

Finds Scar Surgery New Aid for Criminals

New York.—Surgeons and heads of hospitals may soon have to be included among those to whom the police send circulars descriptive of criminals at large. The comparatively new field of reconstructive surgery, by which scars or other distinguishing marks may be removed from the face or body, threatens to become an important aid to criminals sought by the police. Deputy Police Commissioner Faurot is considering a problem stated in an address to the school of detectives by Dr. James Francis Grattan, a New York surgeon who was a medical officer at West Point during the World war. Doctor Grattan reconstructed faces and bodies of many wounded soldiers.

This is the problem:

"What is to prevent a criminal with a scar on his face, and who is wanted in Chicago, from going to some legitimate surgeon's office in Philadelphia or some other city and having his scar removed, remaining away until all visible signs are removed, and then going where he pleases?"

PUBLIC OFFICIALS UNDER INDICTMENT

OHIO DRIVE MOST FRUITFUL NO MONOPOLY IN MIDDLEWEST

In Almost All Cases Charges Are For Accepting Bribes In Return For Protection To Bootleggers or Engaging In Liquor Traffic.

New York, May 8 (U.P.)—Scores of public officials thruout the country today stand indicted, convicted or under suspicion for alleged participation in bribery and conspiracies to defeat the purposes of the prohibition laws.

These officials range from mayors, sheriffs and prohibition directors to comparatively unimportant enforcement agents and policemen patrolling beats.

Reports to the United Press show that in thirteen larger cities, selected at random and located from coast to coast, approximately 200 public servants have been indicted in the last few months on charges involving prohibition enforcement and that approximately 30 others have been suspended or punished in some other manner.

Of the 200 indicted 88 have been convicted and sentenced—the majority to jail terms. The cause of the others are pending in most instances. Acquittals have been few.

In Ohio the drive against official graft in connection with prohibition has been the most fruitful thus far. More than sixty policemen and dry agents have been sentenced—nearly all of them to the penitentiary, while one federal prohibition director his assistant, a mayor, a sheriff and a deputy sheriff are under indictment and their cases pending.

In Des Moines, Iowa, five policemen were convicted of bootlegging, two deputy sheriffs were sent to prison for stealing liquor from county vaults and the chief of police has offered two weeks extra vacation to any officer who brings about conviction of a fellow officer for an offense involving the prohibition laws.

But the middlewest has no monopoly on this sort of thing.

Birmingham, Alabama, reports nine officers under indictments on charges of accepting bribes.

Only this week in Morris county, New Jersey, the county prosecutor and 13 others were indicted for violation of the state prohibition laws.

In New York City there have been many demotions, transfers and dismissals from the police and prohibition forces and two state troopers were indicted within the last ten days. Nineteen members of the coast guard force were suspended last week and held for court martial.

On the Pacific coast five San Francisco police officers and five prohibition agents have been prosecuted. Los Angeles has convicted six county officers and indicted eight city policemen. Two Portland, Oregon, policemen and one Oregon state agent are under indictment.

In the mountain territory Denver, Colorado, has suspended 13 policemen pending investigation and placed ten on trial to determine whether they should be dismissed. If the evidence warrants they will be prosecuted in federal courts for aiding in the defeat of prohibition enforcement.

Several Detroit, Michigan, policemen have been dismissed for accepting bribes; four Kansas City enforcement agents have been convicted; two federal agents in Philadelphia are under charges of extorting money from violators of prohibition laws; in Michigan six town constables of small communities are under charges of bootlegging and the county jailer of Clatsop county, Alabama, will be tried on like charge this week.

In New England the chiefs of police of Swampscott, (where president Coolidge will have a vacation) and Scituate, Massachusetts, are under fire but not indicted and several policemen of small communities are under investigation.

In all cases the charges are similar accepting bribes in return for "protection," or actually engaging in the liquor traffic in some form.

METHODISTS REPAY DEBT OF GRATITUDE

To Catholics Extended Ten Years Ago and Help Build Church.

Ten year ago Rev. Father H. Angel was assistant pastor of St. Kieran's Roman Catholic church in Lawrenceville district in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania when the Primitive Methodist church nearby burned. The Methodist were unable to raise funds to rebuild their church.

Altho his own parishioners were poor, Father Aangel sought their funds to rebuild the Methodist church.

On the first day of this year Father Angel suffered the same misfortune as his former neighbors when St. Patrick's church at Alpsville, near Pittsburgh, of which he had become pastor, was destroyed by fire. Remembering the aid he had given them, the Primitive Methodists collected a substantial sum and a new church was built at Alpsville with the aid of their money.

Mrs. Will Drum died at her home in Cleveland Thursday evening. Her death was due to pneumonia. She is survived by her husband.

Flames Destroy Two Big Chicago Elevators

Two immense grain elevators at South Halsted street and the river, Chicago, were destroyed at night by one of the most spectacular and dangerous fires with which the Chicago firemen have contended for years. The elevators, which were full of grain, were under lease to the Grain Marketing company, a recently formed co-operative association of farmers, millers and elevator operators. The loss was put at $2,250,000.

FAMILY GATHERING

A most delightful family gathering was held at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Young, of Amanda, on May 3d, in honor of Miss Jessie Pickel, of Crete, Nebraska, who is visiting relatives in various parts of Ohio. Miss Pickel is the youngest daughter of Jerome Pickel, originally of Turlington, who moved to Nebraska about forty years ago.

About eighty people, nearly all descendants of Jacob Pickel, were present at the "gathering of the clan." Although the weather was not suitable for an outdoor affair, as had been planned, the beautiful and spacious home of the Youngs' proved equal to the occasion, as did the cordial hospitality of Mrs. Young, her daughters, Darletta and Ora, and her sons, Frank and Ed.

The day was spent in getting acquainted and visiting, and in music and song. Mr. Lincoln Kane led the crowd in singing a number of hymns. Miss Violet Stoddy, of Columbus, sang several songs. (Continued on page four.)

The Epworth League will render the special program at 6:30. Special musical numbers will be rendered by "The Harmony Sextette" of Circleville. Ohio Miss Flora Dunlap, of Des Moines, Iowa, will deliver the address. Credit Accorded Luther.

One story ascribes the first Christmas tree to Martin Luther, who conceived the rather pretty idea that the dark branches of the young spruce, gayly illuminated with colored candles and hung with its bright ornaments and gifts, would suggest to the children the dome of heaven with its innumerable stars, and, perhaps, thoughts of praise and gratitude to Him who is the Giver of all good things around them.

DIES FAR FROM HOME IN PANAMA

Mrs. J. F. Warner, of Clarksburg—Remains to be Brought Home.

Mrs. Alma E. Hardy Warner, wife of Mr. John F. Warner and a sister-in-law of Mrs. Luther Churtz and Mr. Floyd Warner of this place, died at the Herrick hospital, in Panama, R. P. on April 18, 1925, at the age of 58 years.

Mrs. Warner was born in Clarksburg, Ohio, on August 11, 1863. On May 24, 1891, she was united in marriage to John F. Warner at Waverly, Ohio. Four children were born to this union only one of whom survive, Paul H. Warner.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner went to the Canal Zone in 1906 where they have since made their home. Mrs. Warner had been in frail health for some years. She had been a quiet sufferer patient in tribulation, with an abiding faith, an everlasting hope that spanned the river separating Time from Eternity, and with boundless charity toward her fellows. Her consistent life won for her host of friends whose affection brought her unmeasured happiness during the closing hours of her pilgrimage.

She leaves to cherish her memory, the husband, son, and daughter-in-law on the Isthmus.

The funeral services were held at the Balboa Union church of which she was a faithful member by Rev. Raymond E. Marshall, he members of Orchard chapter, Order of Eastern Star, of which Mrs. Warner was a member, attended in a body.

The remains were cremated, and the earthly tabernacle thus remaining will be placed in the beautiful cemetery at Brown's Chapel in Ross county, Ohio, beside the children who have preceded her in death — Williamsport News.

CALIFORNIA APHIS LOUSE DESTRUCTIVE

Pea Crop of the Golden State Jeopardized by Vegetable Lice.

Ohio growers and canners of peas have just been advised that the aphis or pea louse has appeared in California and threatens serious damage to, if not total destruction of the pea crop in that state. California produces about 300,000 cases of canned peas a year, compared with 430,000 cases in Ohio. There had been indications of a large yield in California until the aphis appeared. If the California crop is destroyed, it is expected that a larger demand will be made upon the growers and canners of Ohio. For several years Ohio canners have striven to produce the highest grade of canned peas possible. This effort has resulted in increased demands for the Ohio brands from all over the country. The productive capacity of the pea canning industry in the United States has doubled since 1916. In 1923, Ohio ranked seventh in the production of canned peas, according to census bureau returns just available. The value of the canned pea crop was $1,104,273. Pea canneries are located in Mercer, Logan, Champaign, Ross, Pickaway and a few other counties.

Bright Colors to Rule New Tunics

Red, Green, Blue, Lavender, Among Favored Shades for Spring Wear.

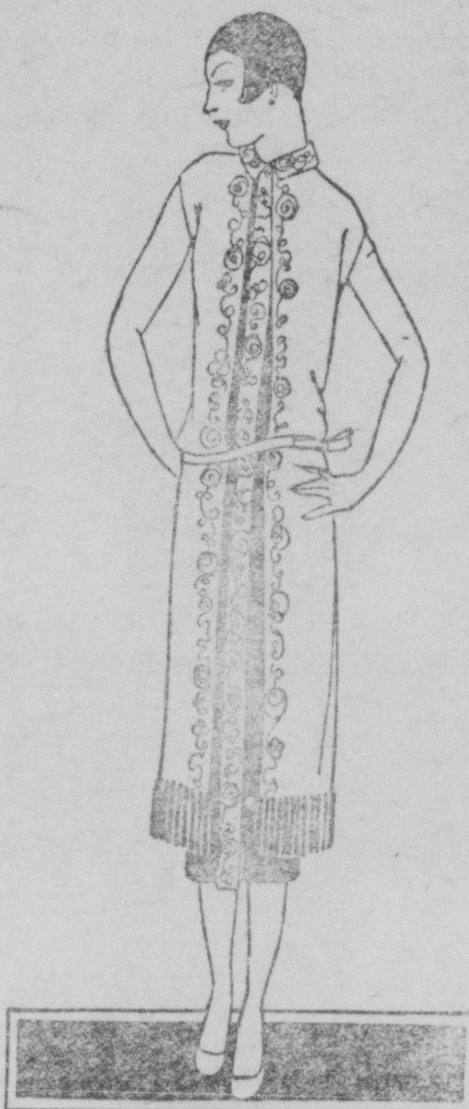

There is a great splash of red all through the long row of the new tunics. It is impossible to get too bright a red, and where the plain color does not make the body of the costume it is used in trimming or may furnish the color for the slip foundation.

It is very hard these days, what with the lengthening of blouses and the shortening of skirts, to tell a tunic from a dress at first glance. Not until after it has been put on can a tunic be differentiated from one of the short, straightline frocks. There is, however, a difference in price based on the traditional figures governing blouses and dresses, rather than on any difference in materials or elaboration.

The tendency to confuse the two garments is all the greater since the season's tunics are developed in dress styles, with long jabot trimming, side plaits and other details. Also many of them have a border of plain material applied to gayly colored prints, one of the characteristics of the new frock.

One such tunic is made of a flowered print, with a V-shaped neck opening, very short sleeves and an applied hem of heavy scarlet crepe which matches the red in the design and weights the garment. This tunic, as it will appear during the warm days, is worn with a slip of white silk which emphasizes the fresh, summery look of the costume. A red hat and white shoes and stockings are included in the general color scheme.

As if in answer to the call from the tunic for all kinds and colors in slips, they are being shown in the shop.

Two Shades of Red Add to Attractiveness of This Tunic.

this season in greater variety than usual. Red, green, blue, brown and the perennial black silk slips crowd each other for choice as part of a costume. These slips must be, and are, well made and fitted, of excellent material and with deep hems.

A slip of apple green is worn with a tunic of printed crepe in which that shade of green is combined with soft blue and lavender on a white background, the whole suggestive of spring's soft colors. Many tunics show a discreet use of buttons, usually small pearl buttons applied in vertical lines.

Wool, Jersey, Cashmere, Sports Frock Fabrics

Unchallenged in its superiority, the jumper frock in versions for every event of the day becomes the fashion of the hour. For daytime wear in town there are two-piece frocks of Rodier's rep or cashmere fabrics such as a button-front model with high neck and box-plaited front skirt. For the afternoon, variations appear in crepe de chine, crepe satin, sometimes pin tucked at the shoulder to give deep yoke effect, cuffs and apron front or again scroll embroidered.

Originally designed for sports wear, the jumper frock attains smartest expression in the sports fabrics—wool jersey, cashmere or flannel, often combined with crepe de chine. A model of wool jersey features four pockets and crepe de chine collar, cuffs and tie. Another of wool jersey is trimmed and scarfed in cashmere plaid, while a third combines a plaid jumper and scarf with a white flannel front, box-plaited skirt. Chanel's sweater shirt, two-piece model, bordered in crepe de chine, accompanied by a plaited crepe silk skirt in all the pastel shades, became a veritable rage. This same costume, all in natural kasha, is smart, too.

Many of the crepe silk-plaited skirts are mounted on a silk bodice top to ensure an even hang. Jumper frocks often embody mannish tweeds, too.

Jabots of Printed Silk

On the simple one-piece frocks of crepe or faille which are so extremely smart, there is often a long one-sided jabot made of bright-colored printed crepe or chiffon.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood session held Thursday evening, May 7, in the social rooms of the church was one of the most spirited meetings thus far of the year. After the usual procedure of business, Adam Kuntz, as chairman, assisted by a corps of helpers satisfied the hungry by a service of ham and cheese sandwiches, dill pickles and coffee; after which President Brechner again called the meeting to order and announced that the program of the evening would pertain to Circleville Uplift, and was divided into five parts: Moral, Business, Sanitary, Industrial and Agricultural; the different phases of the question being handled by Charles L. Mack, L. E. Goeller, I. M. Mader, H. M. Critch and John Hulse. All of the talks were discussed in regular order, but the climax was not reached until Mr. Hulse presented his argument pertaining to Agricultural Uplift, following which the arguments became heated and exceptionally interesting, prolonging the meeting far beyond the usual adjournment time. Without question this meeting was one of the most beneficial ever held by this organization. The talks and discussions were interspersed by several familiar songs by the whole brotherhood; J. D. Hummel in charge, with Carl F. Seitz at the piano.

PROCLAMATION

Mayor Fitzpatrick Asks for Clean Up and Paint Up
Campaign In City.

Come on, let's put things in order. Our whole city can and should be made as clean and orderly as its cleanest home. Then we will have a safer, happier, healthier city.

Ambition in its highest conception is to dream big dreams and make them come true. The splendid ambition to have a city clean and beautiful is soon to become a reality by the co-operation of all the people.

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as mayor, and with the hearty approval of many far-seeing and zealous citizens, we hereby proclaim the week of May 4 to 9 1925 as the opening week of a continuous Clean Up and Paint Up campaign.

Away with the rubbish piles! Banish the plague spots! Clean up streets and alleys! Cut the weeds, mow the lawn and trim the hedges! Repair and paint every building that needs it.

We need this thorough cleaning and renovation. It is the sensible thing to do—for the health, safety, thrift, pride and happiness of all our people.

It is everybody's job. Every man, woman and child will be expected to help. Let there be no slackers.

GEO. M. FITZPATRICK,

Mayor.

The Circleville Board of Health
Louis Schneider, Health Officer.

Sincerity First Requisite.

And least of all is sincerity a quality that can be successfully imitated. It twines through the whole emotional fiber; it has its roots in the heart. "Sincerity gives wings to power," is the way an old proverb happily puts it. Go through any list of acknowledged leaders of business and professional life. You will find there are few who have not been pre-eminently sincere.—H. Addington Bruce.

ROSE BUGS
AND CHICKS
DON'T AGREETo Many Prove Fatal to
Young Chicks Poultry
Specialists Claim.

Rose bugs and young chicks both thrive during May, but only when they are kept separate. Poultry specialists at the Ohio State university say this in anticipation of the annual loss of chicks whose diet is too highly seasoned with rose bugs.

Chicks from two to twelve weeks of age the poultrymen point out, are apparently poisoned by eating rose bugs. The bugs are common on grape arbors and other plants besides roses. Fence the chicks from these shrubs, the specialists advise and cut the tall grass and weeds around the poultry yard.

"The rose chafer or rose bug, as it is sometimes called, is a long-legged, reddish-brown beetle about half an inch long," says a warning issued by the state university poultrymen. "It feeds on the blossoms and leaves of many common plants and often appears in large numbers about the time the May chicks are most active."

"If the chicks eat these bugs in any quantity they suddenly become listless and die with a full crop. Apparently the bugs are poisonous to the chicks."

"The best plan for next year is to raise the chicks early enough to be out of danger when the rose bugs appear."

AMUSEMENTS

Dance—that is an effective way to retain the affections of one's wife!

This advice is pointed in William de Mille's production "The Fast Set," which begins a one day engagement at the Met theater today.

"Improving the mind is not one of the indoor sports of the tea dance," says a subtitle in the new Paramount production. But another title says, "Bachelors step where husbands will not tread," adding "P. S.—And always the latest steps."

Adapted by Clara Beranger, "The Fast Set," which is a visualization of Frederick Lonsdale's New York and London stage success, is probably the last word in diagnosing the relationship between the jazz mad set and the modern family.

The play and screen version are considered the most unusual and at the same time, most humorous expositions of the irresponsible set. William de Mille as director and Mrs. Beranger having captured the full spirited flavor of the original.

Betty Compton plays the part of an author's wife. She is interested in normal entertainments, while her husband played by Elliott Dexter, is surrounded by high brow writers. A dashing society leader, a fascinating role for Adolph Menjou, sees an opportunity for a flirtation, but the husband breaks up the alliance by bringing a social outcast to a dinner party. Zasu Pitts has the part of the human pawn.

"The Fast Set" is probably the biggest production yet made by William de Mille. It has all the color of New York's great White Way as a background for one of the most sparkling comedies of the season.

FULHIO WHEAT IS PROMISING GOOD YIELD

John C. Stevenson of Jackson Township Expects Average of 20 Bushels to Acre.

John Stevenson, of Jackson township, has the prospect of a good yield of Fulhio wheat this year. His entire acreage will average at least twenty bushels per acre if the condition and stand is indicative of what the yield may be.

The first field was sowed October 2, and has a small amount of Hessian fly in the first half day's sowing.

The next field was sowed October 4 and will yield well.

October 15, the potato field was sowed. This field was broken up this spring and planted to oats there being no wheat at all on this fertile patch. Fulhio was used on entire farm.

Beryl Stevenson, in Wayne township, lost one field that was sowed on October 12. The remaining seventy acres which were sown previous to this date looks good.

Here is what Mr. Stevenson said:—

"Varieties sowed last fall have very little or nothing to do with the wheat prospects this spring. The trouble lies in the date of sowing and the condition of the soil when sowed. We drilled our wheat immediately after the fly-free date and had the soil in good condition. We double disked and cultivated just previous to drilling. We do not believe in working the soil very long ahead of drilling time for the reason that a little rain will not delay our plowing, if we follow this practice. Our wheat was well rooted and stood the freezing weather of the last week in February and first week in March which put an end to so many acres this spring.

It was too dry for the wheat of late sowing, not giving it a chance to become well rooted."

Mr. Stevenson uses a 1-20-5 commercial fertilizer. The one per cent nitrogen he says gives the wheat a quick start, the five per cent potash helps develop the kernel and the 20 per cent phosphoric acid supplies the general deficiency of phosphorus in his soil. He hopes that some day a law will be passed to prohibit the sowing of wheat before the fly-free date set by the Ohio State university.

THE SOYBEAN SURPASSING ALFALFA CROP

Survey Shows Bean Leading Since 1923—Northwest Takes First Place.

Soybeans are rapidly surpassing alfalfa in Ohio, according to acreage figures compiled at the Ohio State university by the soils and farm crops specialists.

"In 1922" these specialists explain. "The soybean acreage for the state was 73,200, while alfalfa reached its highest point, or 118,000 acres. In 1923 the soybean acreage increased to 132,000 and alfalfa fell back to 113,000 acres. Last year the soys increased again mounting to 158,400. Figures on the alfalfa acreage for 1924 are not yet available but it is probable that there will be no material change.

"Soybeans were used most extensively in Ohio for the first time in the northwest. Farmers in that section of the state are planting them with corn to be hogged down. From 1921 to 1923 there was a rapid increase in that section, but during the past year the increase there has been less than two percent.

"During the past two years there has been a heavy increase in the south west, but here chief attention is being paid to soybeans as a hay crop. Other sections also show an increase but the advance has been less rapid.

"Soybean hay has about the same feeding value as alfalfa."

"Beecher's Bibles"

Sharpe rifles were called "Beecher's Bibles" because, during the struggle over slavery, in Kansas, Henry Ward Beecher declared that they would be a more potent moral influence than the Bible with Kansas slaveholders.

Why She Refused to Marry Him

By JAMES BLACK

WARD seven had just one empty bed, and that was not likely to remain empty long. The big hospital was generally overcrowded. Nurse Bascombe moved from bed to bed on night duty, speaking a few words to the patients, smoothing their bedclothes, turning the helpless ones on their other side.

The senior surgeon, Gerald Wickham, watched her as she moved. At thirty-five, Nurse Bascombe was as graceful as a girl. Next in line for the matron. He had known her for several years.

There had been a time, two years before, when he had asked her to marry him. He had felt almost confident of success, but she had refused him as gently as she did everything.

"Is it hopeless?" he asked.

"I'm afraid so."

"You can never care?"

Somehow she escaped answering that question. A wonderful woman, with a mystery in her life, every one agreed. Something unusual had brought that gentleness, that poise to her. Never ruffled, never upset, she was a tower of strength to the senior surgeon.

He watched her. They had remained good friends since she had refused him—good friends, but nothing more. Very tactfully she had let him see that his hope was destined never to be fulfilled. Her whole life was given up to her work. He had accepted her decision.

A girl without. They were bringing a patient into the ward. The matron came in advance, came up to Wickham. An accident. A man badly crushed by a truck. There was no hope, no use to think of operating. They were bringing him in just as he was.

A filthy tramp, exhalant the odor of bootleg whisky. A low, degraded face which yet bore the stamp of former breeding and decency. Better that such a creature should pass out in that unconsciousness which had already mercifully supervened.

The screen was drawn. The orderly was stripping the rags off the newcomer. A flannel nightgown was put over the mangled body. He was lifted into the bed.

Nurse Bascombe turned back the sheets. She folded them over again. A sudden indrawn hiss of her breath. The senior surgeon looked at her in surprise. Her face was deathly white, her body rigid.

Only for a moment. Next instant she was herself again.

"Nothing can be done for him," said Wickham. "He won't live through the night. You've been overdoing it, nurse. Better let Nurse Brahman watch by him."

"No, I'll stay here," she answered. His duties called him away. He was gone an hour when the word came that the bed in ward seven was likely to be empty soon. He went back. Nurse Bascombe still sat by the dying man. She was bending over him, looking into his face.

Wickham came and stood silently beside her. It was a matter of minutes now. The breath was hardly perceptible, the pulse imperceptible. Suddenly, however, the dying man opened his eyes.

He seemed to recognize them, the eyelids fluttered, the lips parted—then the head fell back on the pillow. The senior surgeon stooped over him, and then drew the sheet over his head.

"Is he identified?" he asked.

"Nothing has come about him."

An orderly came forward. Behind him walked a policeman, treading the floor uncomfortably. The orderly whispered to the surgeon, who drew back the sheet for a moment.

"That's him." The policeman nodded. "Guess that's the best thing could have happened to him."

"You wanted him?"

"Wanted him for months. Seven years ago he killed and robbed an old man and got away with it. We got on his trail again. I guess that's the best thing."

When he was gone Nurse Bascombe gripped the surgeon's wrist fiercely. "He was—my husband," she said in a fierce, strained voice. "Do you understand—everything?"

And with a little sigh she collapsed into his arms, unconscious.

But a great happiness was being born in Wickham's heart.

That Quieted Them

The only son had just announced his engagement to his family.

"What? That girl! She squints!" remarked his mother.

"She has absolutely no style," added his sister.

"Red-headed, isn't she?" queried his aunt.

"She's fidgety," said grandma.

"She hasn't any money," put in his uncle.

"She doesn't look strong!" exclaimed his first cousin.

"She's stuck up!" asserted his second cousin.

"She's an extravagant thing!" interposed his third cousin.

"Well, she has one redeeming feature," said the son thoughtfully.

"And what's that?" asked the family in chorus.

"She hasn't any relations," was the quiet reply.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Power of Perversity Not Well Understood

Perversity is one of the great forces of nature. Men have been fighting it for a great many years and opposition has served only to make its power greater. It has seldom been harnessed, except by chance, but potentially it is a mover of mountains.

Sebastian Bach was an orphan who possessed a fiddle, a store of genius and an elder brother who was "practical." The brother permitted him to practice on the fiddle one hour each day—no more; and when Sebastian stole away and practiced in secret he was cuffed for his sins. It may be that his musician's soul yearned to express itself, but he was a boy as well as a genius; and it is quite probable that perversity more than genius spurred him to rebellion.

When a small daughter is offered a book and told that it will prove instructive, she at once abandons it; forbid her to read another, and at once it holds a fascination almost beyond her powers to resist. Make the eating of sauerkraut an offense against church and state and at once many thousands of good folks who never were tempted by the stuff will become enamored of it.

Consider the peach tree. It must be pruned to the orthodox "basket" shape to admit the sunshine and lighten the task of those who pick the fruit. But the pruners cut away the top wood only; they do not disturb the roots. And because the roots continue to supply undiminished vitality the tree exerts itself to put on more wood than was cut away. Efforts to keep it low but encourage its efforts to grow higher.

And there is steam. Free in the air, it is impotent and worthless. Restrained it and its struggles to escape afford power to keep the wheels of civilization turning.

If perversity may be harnessed and set to work, why employ it only as a means of engendering bitterness? It is here to stay; the supply is unlimited and everlasting; it is more dependable than loyalty, a sense of duty or fear of the devil.

It seems a foolish business to waste good breath in moralizing when perversity stands ready to turn the trick. There were times when even unwise movements get great help from persecution.—Baltimore Sun.

Bird Believed Extinct.

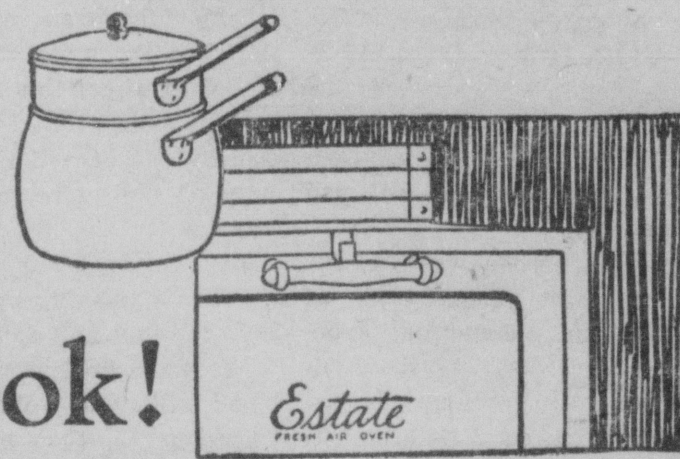

The biological survey says that the ivory-bill woodpecker is found at the present time in the west and heavy semi-tropical woods of the southeastern United States. The Carolina parakeet was found in practically the same regions. It is believed by scientists to be extinct, inasmuch as specimens have not been seen in several years. When last seen these birds were found in Florida.

Wives of the Past

Wives are not worse-off today than they were 2,000 years ago. Two thousand years ago Rome led civilization, and in the words of Lecky, the scientist and historian, "The Roman family was constituted on the principle of the absolute authority of its head, who had a power of life and death over both his wife and his children, and who could repudiate the former at will." So the modern wife has something to be thankful for!

this oven works like a double boiler

You've used double boilers, of course, and know how safely cereals and other delicate foods can be cooked in them. The famous Fresh Air Oven of the Estate Gas Range is built exactly like a double boiler, and distributes heat in the same way. No more "humps"—no more scorching—instead, pies and cakes and cookies that melt in the mouth. It's different—this Estate oven—but it's founded on a principle as old as the double boiler. Let us show you how it works—today.

Seize Opportunity

Opportunities lost cannot be resurrected. The seed may fall from the tree and bring forth another tree. The fruit may decay yet help nurture that tree's growth. But opportunities, if not seized as they come, are gone forever.—Grit.

Blackleg of Potato Can Be Controlled

Formaldehyde or Corrosive Sublimate Favored.

Potato blackleg, one of the most destructive of tuber diseases, can be controlled by treating the seed pieces with hot formaldehyde or corrosive sublimate, provided the seed pieces are planted immediately or are kept out of reach of a certain small fly until they are planted.

This fly lays its eggs in great abundance about the time potatoes are being planted. If it happens to lay them upon seed potatoes and such seed is planted, the eggs hatch out what is known as the seed-corn maggot, so called because when first discovered it was attacking corn seedlings. According to J. G. Leach of the division of plant pathology, Minnesota College of Agriculture, the eggs contain the blackleg organism when they are deposited. Then as the maggot bores into the seed piece it carries with it the bacteria which first rot the seed and then spread to the stem of the plant, causing it also to rot and die.

"The maggots feed upon the bacteria as well as the decaying tuber," says Doctor Leach. "The bacteria remain in the intestinal tract of the maggot until it pupates and makes its way to the surface of the ground where it develops into the adult fly. Thus the insect carries the blackleg bacteria with it at all times."

Capacity of a Silo Is Matter of Importance

The capacity of the silo is a matter of importance. Unless one is keeping at least ten cows the cost of the silo is usually not justified. A round silo, 28 feet high, will hold the silage for about a dozen cows during the usual feeding season. A good standard size ranges from 14 to 16 feet in diameter and 30 to 32 feet high. Under ordinary conditions cows eat from 30 to 40 pounds of silage a day, according to their size and condition of lactation. A farmer can easily estimate how much capacity is needed, on the basis of this amount to be fed per head. If one has 30 cows to feed, then about 1,050 pounds a day would be required, and for a feeding season of seven months or 210 days, 220,500 pounds or 110 tons. A round silo 30 feet deep and 16 feet in diameter inside holds about 120 tons. The capacity of the silo should enable one to feed from the surface daily to a depth sufficient to prevent molding. This is usually placed at around 1 1/2 to 2 inches. In recent years some silo owners on high-priced lands, and not pasturing, feed silage every month, beginning to feed just as soon as the silo is filled and keeping it up until next filling. Others feed the entire year excepting during the flush of pasture in May and June.

Alfalfa Profitable Crop for Use in Any Section

While farmers are growing a good deal of alfalfa they do not grow one-tenth enough. It is by far the best noncultivated crop we can grow, and usually returns as much profit per acre as corn, wheat, or any other cultivated crop.

As a hay crop it is second to none, yielding as high as four tons to the acre in favorable years and never less than two tons. It is liked by every animal on the farm from chickens to horses, and they will leave their grain to eat good alfalfa hay, if it is within their reach. Give calves all the alfalfa hay they will eat after they are four months old and they will thrive on it. It is almost a necessity for milk cows. It doesn't matter what you feed a cow, if you leave the alfalfa out she will decrease in the flow of milk at once.

Fast Work in Sugar

FARM FACTS

Prevent weeds from seeding.

Blessed is a gardener who delights in spring catalogues.

A large part of every farmer's mental capital should be the experiences of others.

Plow pasture lands and improve them, draining wet spots and building up poor spots.

Kohl-rabi is an early season vegetable when at its best, or a late fall one. Put in some seed early.

It takes about six pounds of seed corn to plant an acre. This means that about sixteen ears for each acre to be planted are necessary.

Use oats as a nurse crop for sweet clover rather than barley. In either case the nurse crop should be seeded at about one-half the normal rate of planting.

Perennial vegetables and small fruits may be profitably fertilized with a good dressing of stable manure. Be liberal with the application and cultivate it into the soil early in the spring.

Running a farm garden is no longer a boy's job. It plays such an important part in keeping the cost of living down on the farm that every farmer can afford to take a few days off in the early part of the season to plow and plant the garden.

Being located where rent is an insignificant item compared to others, and otherwise small running expenses all over the store, allows us to sell at lower prices wherein you gain the difference in real cash savings.

WASHINGTON GRANGE NAMES BOYS AND GIRLS

Club Committee, and Also Members to Work with Extension Committee.

Washington grange has appointed a committee consisting of Miss Haidah Leist, Mrs. G. M. Valentine, George Marion, M. J. Valentine and Noah Bolander to work with the extension committee of the Washington Township Farm bureau in forming plans for contributing to Boys' and Girls' Club work in that township. This forward step was taken at their regular meeting on Friday evening, May 1. The committee will not only decide on suitable awards to be given to the members of the different clubs who finish their work and have the highest score, but will also devise plans for encouraging the boys and girls and keeping them interested. The spirit of the mothers and fathers as expressed at this meeting shows their realization of the value of club work to their boys and girls. Washington township has forty-five boys and girls enrolled in club work and Mrs. C. E. Meyers, Priscilla Trimmer, Russell Palm and Kenneth Wertman are the leaders.

A letter has been sent out by the Ohio State grange to all granges in Ohio asking them to cooperate with and encourage club work.

At this meeting of Washington grange a class of eight was initiated in the third and fourth degrees by Master T. M. Glick and his able assistants. Those initiated are as follows: Professor Carl Doebler, of Washington school; County Agent J. D. Bragg and wife, Winifred, and Virginia Given and Carl Frazier.

Washington grange is one of the largest and most progressive granges in the county.

HASEL SUICIDE BRINGS HOPE TO DEFENSE

In Trial of Mrs. Martha Wise Confessed Poisoner at Medina.

Medina, O., May 7.—(U. P.)—A fourth death in the Hardscrabble poison tragedy brought new hope to the defense today in the trial of Mrs. Martha Wise, confessed poisoner of 17 relatives.

The suicide of Mrs. Edith Hazel, sister-in-law of the Widow Wise, throws an entirely new light on the entire case, defense attorneys said.

Mrs. Hazel is said to have broken down under the ordeal of so many tragedies at her very door. Her husband says she suffered from hallucinations that she was the real poisoner instead of Martha Wise.

Defense attorneys declared they would show that Mrs. Hazel's "confession" is just as reliable as the confession of Mrs. Wise which was to be introduced today by the state.

Lovely and Lonely Island.

Christmas Island, in the Indian ocean, is one of the several bits of land that lonely voyagers have come upon in the holiday season and have named accordingly. The island has been described by travelers, says a National Geographic society bulletin, as at once one of the loneliest and levellest spots in the world. And its possession of tree-climbing crabs and a super-scented tree gives it a right to be classed as one of the queerest. The island, 12 miles long by nine miles broad, is in reality made up of the slopes and top of a huge mountain peak. Soundings shows that if the waters of the ocean were drained away a rough pyramid 15,000 feet high would stand alone in a plain, the present island forming the last 1,000 feet of its slope.
